trocution of to-day an entirely different matter from the first bungling attempts to kill with electricity. There is no longer any necessity for a repeated shock with signs of life between each, and the subject in the chair, after the first contact, is not made limp and then rigid in turn as the bowerful current is on and off. The device permits the full force of the contact to be diminished by the turn of a small lever until only a slight current is passing and there is no steaming, no burning and no relaxation. Science has overcome the early defects which made an electrocution a horrible sight to witness, and rendered it the swiftest and most humane method of man-killing known. The chair used to-day was the same that was used for the negro Hamilton and also for McGuire. It is of pine, With a high back holding as strap which reaches about the chin and holds the head firmly in place. The arms of the chair also have straps to pinion the arms of the subject and other straps to hold the feet to the floor. The chair holds the victim in an easy position, but so firmly that he cannot move head, leg or arm. Harris was the tenth man to die by electricity here.

The death warrant was formally read to Harris at 8:30. He displayed indifference and its reading did not noticeably affect him. Warden Durston said Harris showed no signs of breaking down and appeared warrant. The Rev. John S. C. Weills, the shortly after 9 o'clock this morning and re-mained for an hour. After he came out Dr. Irving went in and found Harris showing some signs of nervousness, but otherwise all right. He said afterward that Harris did not ask for morphine or any other stimulant. His only request was for Harris was shaved and had his hair cut at 10:30 A. M. He then put on a new suit of clothes furnished by the State.

TWENTY-SEVEN WITNESSES. The witnesses were all assembled in the warden's office at 11 o'clock. There were swenty-seven of them. Seven were physisians and ten were newspaper men. The others were State officials and friends of the warden. It was 12:16 P. M. when Warden Durston announced that everything was in readiness, and invited the witnesses down stairs. They were taken to one of the offices and counted. There was a delay there of fifteen minutes. Then the party filed solemnly down the stairs through the kitchen under the warden's house and out by a temporary passage way built of pine boards to screen the witnesses from the outside public. This passage way led to the outer door of the execution chamber. The witnesses entered and seated hemselves on wooden stools around in a half circle at the west end of the room and facing the chair. Warden Durston, accompanied by Dr. Irvine, headkseper Connaughton and four guards, preceded the witnesses. Electrician Davis was already at the switchboard. The spiral wire suspended from a bent iron rod dangled threateningly above the chair and another spiral wire coiled at the toot of the chair gave an inkling of the nature of the apparatus. Rubber bags filled with water and suspended overhead, with tubes reaching to sponges in the electrodes, added to the formidable appearance of the outfit.
It was 12:30 when the witnesses entered the room. While they seated themselves electrician Davis attached the wires to the sattery of lamps and turned on 1,760 voits. He finished testing the apparatus at 12:36 and announced that all was ready. Connaughton and the two guards then went for Harris. He was awaiting the final summons in his cell. With him was Chaplain Weills. Harris was ready in a moment and the little procession was quickly formed. Screens had been placed in front of the other cells so that the men who will soon share Harris's fate did not see him as went out with a guard on either side and the faithful chaplain following him. He looked slight and pale as stepped into the room. He paused an instant on the threshhold and looked calmly over the assembled witnesses. Kind-hearted Warden Durston had stepped over to the reporters and asked them to conceal their pads, saying "Harris might not like " The pads were put out of gight, and Harris merely looked over the people, scanning their faces as his eyes swept around the room. He walked entirely alone, just behind Connaughton, and wavered for a moment, more from not knowing which way he was expected to go than from weakness. Connaughton pointed to the chair, and without even a look of enriesity at the thing which was to end his career, he dropped in the seat. As he did so he began to talk in a low voice. He said: "I have a word to say if the warden will permit." He pansed and repeated: "I

Those were his last words. After uttering them he seemed relieved, and settled back in the chair, to which his legs and arms had already been strapped by Eaton and Ford, the two guards. State detective Jackson attached the electrode to Harris's right leg, which was bared to the knee, a elit in the trousers having been made in advance. Eaton placed the helmet containing the other electrode on the head. Electrician Davis attached the wires to the two electrodes. All of this work was done quicker than the telling of it, and then the guards stepped back. Davis, who had gone to the switchboard said: "All ready." There was an instant of pause, while every man in the room held his breath. Then Dr. Daniels raised his hand. A sharp click from the lever, and the form in the chair straightened up till the straps creaked. It was just 12:40% by the stop watch held by Dr. Merritt, when a current of 1,760 volts passed through the body of Carlyle Harris. In two seconds Davis threw the switch back, so that only 150 volts were on. Dr. Daniels still held his hand aloft, and one tinger pointed above, as though to indicate that the soul of the man in the chair had passed upward. Then his arm fell, and in just fifty-five and three-quarters seconds the current was shut of

Drs. Irvine and Habershaw stepped forward and examined the body, which had settled back limp in the chair. Dr. Irvine opened the coat and vest and tore away the shirt over the heart. He applied the stethoscope, and after listening for heart beats turned and shook his head. This was two minutes after the first contact, and Dr. Daniels then invited the other physicians to step forward and examine the body. Life was extinct, and it was plain to all who were present that death had come at the first touch of the current. The only sign of animation after the current was turned on was a slow movement of the little finger of the right hand, and that was evidently due to muscular contraction caused by the current and not by the volition of the subject in the chair. All the physicians present expressed themselves as satisfied that death had been instantaneous. When all had examined the body Dr. Daniels turned to the witnesses and said: "That is all." The witnesses who had seen other electrocutions agreed that this was the most successful one yet. There was no sign of steaming at the points of contact and, aside from a purplish tinge appearing on the skin, there was no change in the appearance of the body. As the witnesses passed out of the building one of the newspaper men fainted and was carried out by friends. He recovered in a few minutes. Mrs. Harris viewed the raising of the black dag from the window of the room at the hotel. When the ominous signal floated on the stiff breeze she turned quietly away, resigned and calm, as she had is dead. been for a few days past. At 12:54 Allan

Harris arrived at the prison, and principal keeper Connaughton escorted him to the room in which the body of his brother lay. RESULT OF THE AUTOPSY. At 1 o'clock the autopsy was commenced. Harris's body being laid on a table which had been brought into the death chamber after his electrocution. Dr. Daniels had charge, Drs. Sheeham and Pyne working at the head and Dr. Merritt at the chest, Dr. Irvine, the prison physician, assisting.

Their report follows: The body was fairly well nourished; weight 132 pounds; slight mark of burning on inside calf of right leg: slight adhesion of right lung, due to pleurisy; left lung collapsed. The examin ation of the heart showed a slight amount o pericardial fluid, but it was normal. The blood was fluid. The liver was normal; gall bladder full; bladder two-thirds full; nervous retention of urine was evident. The right kidney was but one-third the normal size capule strongly adhered; left kidney normal The examination of the brain showed excessive arachnoid fluid, no adhesions, arachnoid vessels congested. The stomach was nearly full of fluid. An examination of the lungs showed no discernible effects from excessive use of cigarettes. There was no congested condition of the passage. His nervousness, however, was due to cigarettes, which caused the coating on his tongue and a dry mouth. The breakfast of oranges, oatmeal and coffee which Harris ate this morning was undigested. Harris's skull cap, which had been sawed off by Drs. Sheehan and Payne, was used to dip the fluid from the thorax to a pail on the floor. The doctors said after the autopsy that the examination had shown

Harris to be in a healthy condition. At 3 o'clock undertaker Kipp, who carries on his business in the village of Sing Sing, drove up to the prison. He procured the prison physician's certificate of the cause of Harris's death and then drove into the prison grounds through the southeasterly gate. In his wagon was a highly polished oak casket, which was carried into the death chamber, where the body of Harris, dressed in a dark suit of prison-made goods, reposed upon a table. The body was placed in the casket. The undertaker refused to disclose the plans for the disposition of the body. The silver plate upon the cover of the casket contained this inscription:

> CARLYLE W. HARRIS, MURDERED May 8, 1893. Aged 23 years, 7 months, 15 days. "We would not if we had known." (The Jury.)

MRS. HARRIS SPEAKS,

She Says Her Son Was Judicially Murdered -Carlyle's Statement Withheld.

Sing Sing, N. Y., May 8.—There was a very impressive scene at the Ambler House in the afternoon, when Mrs. Harris saw the reporters. It. was a few minutes after & o'clock. This remarkable woman had endured not only the grief of a mother losing her first born, but had suffered the agony of having her son, whom she believed innocent, branded as a murderer and killed by the State, and yet she stood there calm and passive, waiting for the score of newspaper men to enter. Then facing them with dry eyes and a firm voice, she said: "It has been said that Carlyle Harris was guilty because he shed no tears when Helen Potts died. I shed no tears now, and God knows I loved Carlyle Harris. My boy was innocent. You men, who saw him die, know that he went to his grave an innocent man. With his last words he declared his innocence, and yet he has been killed. He has been judicially murdered. His last statement was to have been given to me as soon as he was dead, and I have not received it yet. I do not think I shall ever see it, at least not as my boy wrote it. It was my boy's last wish that it be given out to-day, but I am powerless to carry it out."

Mrs. Harris then gave out a statement for publication, in part as follows: "Though an innocent has been judicially murdered, I can praise him for even this last ordeal As soon as I saw my boy I felt he had grown spiritually. He made no professions of conversion, but very quietly told me be prayed to God, had asked His forgiveness, and, though not sure of immortality, trusted in God for the future. There was no confession of the crime for which he was charged-how could there he? He felt very deeply the disgrace his execution brought upon us, but I told him I thanked God I was Carlyle Harris's mother, and I could say what few mothers could say that in his twenty-three years of life he had not given me one unkind word, or ever disobeyed an expressed command. We agreed that God's way must be best. A last word of thanks to the hundreds who have felt for and believed in Carl. I know no friend who has not proved himself Carl's friend. My last word would be a testimony to God's great goodness in proving my boy's innoceece beyond a reasonable doubt and in sustaining us in this honr of trial." Warden Durston was asked for Carlyle Harris's statement, which it was understood had been prepared for the press. Durston had promised to turn this statement over to Mrs. Harris, but this afternoon said he thought it best to submit it to the superintendent of prisons first, and he had mailed it to that official this evening.

Many Hours Wasted by Useless Motions in the House of Commons.

DEBATE IN THE COMMONS

Conservatives Consume Many Hours in Talking on Useless Motions. LONDON, May 8 .- In the House of Commons to-day Mr. Gladstone, in response to Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, said that he would propose that the ninth clause of the Irish home rule bill should be retained without alteration. This clause provides for the retention of Irish members in the Imperial Parliament. The Speaker ruled that the instructions to the committee onhome-rule bill offered by Lord Randolph Churchill and others, with a view of defeating the bill, were out of order.

The House then went into committee on the home-rule bill. The Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain moved to postpone Clause 1 of the bill, which simply provides that on and after the appointed day there shall be a legislature in Ireland. Mr. Chamberlain's amendment was rejected by a vote of 270 to 213.

Charles B. Darling, Conservative, of Deptford, proposed to amend Clause 1 by reassirming the supremacy of Parliament in local as well as imperial matters.

Mr. Gladstone opposed the motion for the reason that the supremacy of Parliament had been asserted sufficiently in the A long debate followed. After six hours had been talked away, Mr. Morley, Chief Secretary for Ireland, moved the closure. His motion evoked opposition yells and cries of "shameful" and "soundalous," and to which the Irish members replied: "Remember what you did in 1887." The closure was carried by a vote of 243 to 195. The amendment was lost by a vote of 285 to Lord Randolph Churchill moved that the chairman of the committee report progress. It was hopeless, he said, to get fair play, as the business in committee was being conducted. Mr. Gladstone resisted the motion, remarking that he was not the author of the closure rule.

Mr. Chamberlain said that he could appreciate the Prime Minister's coolness. When the worm was trampled, it was not the trampler who had reason to become excited. Nevertheless, the worm's feelings might be hurt. Mr. Chamberlain closed with a fling at the Irish, whom he charged with undiscriminating support of the government. "How much would it take to square you?" shouted William Pollard Byles, a Yorkshire Liberal. Conservative shouts, for an apology followed. The Chairman requested Mr. Byles to apologize, but Mr. Byles refused to do so. More shouting and general disorder swelled the uproar, above which could be heard indistinctly the protests of the Irish that Mr. Chamberlain was the one who ought to apologize first. Eventually Mr. Gladstone interposed, calmed the membersa and drew from the chairman a statement that he had misunderstood the facts and wished to withdraw his request for an apology from Mr. Byles. The motion to report progress was then rejected by a vote

Mr. Balfour moved that the chairman leave the chair. The motion was resisted by Mr. Gladstone, and was lost by a vote of 304 to 257. When the monotony of useless motions and divisions was resumed Chairman Mellor's voice was noticeably hourse in consequence of his strengons but meffectual efforts to make himself heard during the worst of the confusion caused by the Byles incident. The sitting dragged uneventfully to the adjournment, at midnight. The last two hours had been completely wasted in futile squabbling and voting.

RADICAL SPLIT PERMANENT.

One of the Leading German Political Parties Broken in Two. BERLIN, May 8.-The division of the Radical party has assumed permanent form. The stronger contingent, under Richter, will be henceforth known as the Radical People's party and will co-operate with the South German Democrats under Friedrich Payer, who made the bitterest of the speeches against the government on the last day of the Reichstag and is opposed to all concessions to militarism. Richter justifies this course in a manifesto, which says: "It was impossible to fight the reactionaries on the Right, the Socialists on the Left and at the same time dissenters within our own ranks. The division of our party was unavoidable."

The weaker contingent of the party. which seceded with Major Hinze, has assumed the name of the Radical Union. The Radical Unionists have been the first to score a success with the new electors. At a Radical meeting in the Schweinitz-Wiltenburg constituency, to-day, Dr. Dohein, one of the twenty-two Deputies who seceded from the Radical cancus Saturday and founded the National Union, was indorsed as Radical candidate in the general election, although he had explicitly avowed his purpose to vote, if returned to

As regards both the schools and the return of the Jesuits, he said, the Governor would act in complete independence of clerical infinence, not even yielding in the face of another Kulturkampf. The Berlin correspondent of the London Daily News, in giving the history of the division of the Radical party, says: "The split will have great influence on Germany's domestic policy. Since its foundstion the party has suffered from want of unity among its leaders. Common hatred of Bismarck, however, kept a semblance of harmony. The ties were loosened with the accession of Caprivi. The army bill served to turn the smoldering jealousies into open rupture, which, on top of the dissolution, was the greatest possible blunder."

Davitt Applies for the Chiltern Hundreds. LONDON, May 8 .- Michael Davitt, anti-Parnellite member for northeast Cork, has applied for the Chiltern Hundreds. This means the resignation of his seat in Parliament. Although the bankruptcy act allows a man six months' grace after he has been declared a bankrupt, Mr. Davitt prefers retiring at once. He said to-day that his conscience would not allow him to remain in Parliament on sufferance. Mr. Davitt's financial troubles were caused by the costs attendant upon the North Meath election contest. Famine and Fevers. Moscow, May 8 .- Destitution is decimating the population of the rural districts in central and southeastern Russia. Fevers have followed everywhere in the path of the famine, and the utmost suffering prevails in the provinces of Saratoff, Samara and Voronesh. The land owners are heavy losers from the prevalent distress. Many of them have sold or killed all sheir live stock to carry them through the crisis, and are now on the verge of bankruptcy.

Last of the Itata Case. SAN FRANCISCO, May 8 .- United States

Judges McKenns, Morrow and Hawley, sitting as a Circuit Court of Appeals, today affirmed the judgment of the United States District Court of southern California, dismissing the libel against the Chilian steamer Itata, releasing the vessel and two hundred cases of rifles which she had aboard when seized by the United States marshal in San Diego harbor, two years ago. The decision of the Circuit Court is very lengthy, and reviews the details of the late revolution. The court finds that the state of affairs as alleged in the libel is not borne out by the evidence.

Two Thousand Delegates and Many Visitors Expected at the Convention.

Clarkson, Manley and Other Party Workers Arrive at Louisville to Attend the Meeting of the Executive Committee To-Day.

special to the Indianapolis Journal. LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 8 .- The delegates to the National Republican League Clubs' convention, which meets here Wednesday, are coming in rapidly. The Philadelphia delegation arrived this morning in a private car tendered national committeeman David Martin by the Pennsylvania Company. They were accompanied by national committeeman J. S. Clarkson, of Iowa; L. Stewart, of New York; Gen. Charles H. Bartlett, of New Hampshire; Garrett A. Hobart, of New Jersey; David Martin, of Philadelphia, and Joseph H. Manley, of Augusta, Me. General Hastings, of Belfonte, Pa., and James F. Burke, president of the College League of Pittsburg, were also in the party.

When Mr. Ciarkson was approached by a reporter he said Mr. Manley was the bureau of information. Mr. Manley said: "I do not know a darned thing. If I did I would not be here. I came here to find out what was to be done and to answer my country's call." The advance guard of the Ohio delegation embraces W. I. Squire, J. H. Adams, T. W. Wheeler, L. W. Morris and F. M. Campfield. Mr. Squire, of Toledo, is to be put in nomination by the Ohio people for president of the National League. To his sterling work is attributed McKinley's election as Governor of Ohio. It is likely that there will be a spirited fight for the po-sition of secretary of the National League. Mr. A. D. Humphrey, who at present holds the position, could be re-elected if he so desired, but he has issued an ultimatum to the effect that he will not accept under any circumstances, and a choice lot of candidates has been presented to succeed him. Among the most prominent of these are Theodore Stubb. Lester, of Springfield, Ill.: J. F. Burke, of Pittsburg, who is now president of the College League; H. Lindsey, of Pittsburg, and William E. Reilly, of this city. The number of delegates to the league convention is about two thousand. Besides, there will be several thousand visitors. The Kentucky League convention will be called to order at Macauley's Theater by President L. J. Crawford, of Newport, at 10 o'clock to-morrow morning. One delegate from each congressional district and six from the State at large will be elected to represent the State organization in the national convention. Secretary Thomas J. McCann, of the State association has assurances that six hundred delegates, at the least calculation, will attend to-morrow's meeting. It is likely that the session will continue until a late hour at night. The programme of the meetings of the National League will be as follows:

Tuesday, 8 P. M .- Meeting National League executive committee at national headquarters, Wednesday, 10 A. A mass meeting will be held at Phoenix Hill Park Wednesday night. Each State will be represented by one speaker. Kentucky's representative will be Hon, W. C. Bradley. The other State delegates have not yet chosen their speakers. A business session will be held Thursday morning. Reports of committees will be heard, standing committees will be chosen and the officers of the league, to serve during the coming From 2 to 5 P. M. on Thursday the annual convention of the American Republican College League will be held. President James Francis Burke, of Pittsburg, will deliver his address. A vocal and instrumental concert and promenade will follow. The Woman's Republican Association of the United States will hold a convetion, but the exact time has not been fixed. Mrs. J. Ellen Foster, of Iowa, will be here during the convention. She will arrive to-morrow. Mrs. Foster is president of the National Woman's Republican Association, and she expects to meet a hundred or more representatives of that body here. She has engaged rooms at the Galt House. Mrs. Foster has for years been actively engaged in the fight for prohibition in Iowa, and also in the organization of women Republican clubs in all the Western States. just after the presidential election she formed 150 Republican ladies' clubs in Kansas, and the fact that the Republican party has won in a majority of the local elections since is attributed to her work. Mrs. Foster and Mrs. Lease are bitter opponents, and the former's efforts are directed to defeating the plans of the latter to organize the women of Kaneas and Iowa into an adunct of the Farmers' Alliance. The tenth annual session of the Supreme Council of Catholic Knights of America will convene at Chicago to-day. The chief business will be a discussion of a proposition of settlement from the defauiting extreasurer. O'Brien. At the monthly meeting of the New York Presbytery yesterday it was decided to ask the General Assembly to formulate a brief and simple statement of the doctrines of the church to be used for the instruction of those desiring to become communicants. It is doubtful if an attempt will be made to interfere with the new twenty-hour train to Chicago over the New York Central and the Lake Shore by the arbitration committee of the Trunk-line and Central Traffic associations, which meet to-day. It was said the other roads would insist. inasmuch as they could not compete in limit of time, that the New York Central should either withdraw the train or charge $30 for the trip.

Y. M. C. A. Secretaries. LOUISVILLE, May 8 .- The conference of the secretaries of Young Men's Christian Associations opened in its last day's session at 9:30 o'clock. The first paper on the programme was by Mr. D. A. Budge, general secretary of Montreal, on the subject: "What Is the Best Preparation for the Secretaryship?" The paper emphasized the need of training. I. C. Brown, State secretary of Illinois, was not present, being ill. His paper on "Intellectual Growth Essential to Success" was read by Mrs. J. H. Bowman. The session of the afternoon and night closed the conference. The secretaries will to-morrow drive about the city. Committed Forgery to Get Married. CINCINNATI, O., May 3,-A good-looking young man, accompanied by a bandsome blonde young woman, called on the chief of police to-day. The young man said he wanted to give himself up for forging his father's name to a check for $1,000. His story was that being a liebrew, and the young lady, who was his wife, a Catholic, their marriage was opposed by both families. He took the $1,000, married his sweetheart, and, having spent the money, wanted to go back to St. Louis, where he said his father is a wealthy clothing mer-

MANGLED AND BRUISED.

Andrew Keys, of South State Street, Injured by Unknown Forces at Pleasant Run Bridge.

At half-past 10 o'clock last night Collier

& Murphy's ambulance was called to Garfield Park to remove Andrew Keys to his home, No. 424 South State street. Keyshad either fallen or been knocked off the bridge over Pleasant run on the west side of the park. He was found about 10 o'clock by a gardener named Ernest T. Johan, who resides on the Madison road, west of the bridge, and was going up the railroad to the Belt. As he was crossing the bridge his attention was attracted by the moans of Keys, lying upon the rocks beneath, and descending found the man lying where he had fallen. The distance from the bridge to the ground is fully thirty feet and there is a lot of broken stone in the bed of the run and around the abutments of the bridge upon which Keys fell. He was still conscious when found by the gardener and said that he had fallen from the bridge, but afterward claimed that he had been assaulted and knocked off. Johan went to the Belt crossing and telephoned for the ambulance.

When the ambulance arrived, and attempt was made to remove the man, it was found that he was mangled and bruised in terrible manner. His right arm was broken and mashed almost to a pulp, both legs and hips were injured to the extent of being useless, he had a cut near the left ear and both eyes were cut and bruised, and over the right eye was a gash about four inches long, extending well up on the Keys had been noticed about the neighborhood all afternoon acting strangely, and it is thought that he was slightly demented. Charles Ray, telegraph operator at the crossing of the Belt and J., M. & l., said that he saw him take off his coat and start down the track at about 7 o'clock yesterday evening, and it is supposed that he fell off the bridge at that time and lay there until found by Johan nearly three hours later. A brother of the injured man says that he has been acting strangely for several weeks past.

It is reported that William Wyatt, a Big Four brakeman who passed the bridge on a cut of cars some time before Keys was found, saw the coat lying upon the bridge, and thanking that it belonged to a man who had been struck by the train, went under the bridge to see if any one had been struck, and found Keys, but learning that he had not been struck by the train, left him and said nothing about his being

CHARGED WITH HIGHWAY ROBBERY. Two Men Accused of "Holding Up" Another on

Second Street Saturday Night. John Davis, who claims to be a traveling tile setter, went out to Brighton Beach Sunday afternoon, and enjoyed himself to such an extent that on his return to the city he happened to wander over to Second street, near the Big Four tracks. While leisurely traversing that thoroughfare he was set upon by two men who succeeded in extracting his wallet containing $50. They made off before he recovered from the shock of being so boldly held up, but he felt sure he could recognize one of them whose face was badly scarred. Yesterday Thornton and McGuff arrested two men named Briggs and Gard, near the scene of the robbery, locked them up on suspicion. Gard answered to the description of one of Davis's assailants and late last night James Moreland was brought in, having been identified by Davis as resembling the other one.

GRAND-"THE WHITE SQUADRON." The initial presentation of "The White Squadron" drew a fair audience at the Grand Opera House last night. The play is replete with strong situations, and the climaxes are highly effective, and the spirit throughout is intensely patriotic, Three of the four scenes are laid in the city of Rio Janeiro, the fourth showing the exterior of an ancient monastery. The scenery, which was especially painted for this play, is very fine. The leading role, that of Victor Staunton, of the United States war ship Chicago, was taken by Mr. Whitecar, who scored a pronounced success. Elmer Grandin, as Santos, a Moorish slave, was a strong factor in the cast, as was also Miss Lillian Leach, as Hope Blossom. With the production of the play there are a wealth of flags, the frequent rattle of musketry and the clash of swords at every turn. The "White Squadron" will be repeated tonight and to-morrow night, with Wednesday matinee.

PARK THEATER-"A KENTUCKY GIRL." Miss Anna Belmont made her mitial appearance in Indiapapolis as a star at the Park Theater yesterday in Fred S. Gibbs's sensational comedy, "A Kentucky Girl." She proved herself to be a soubrette who is attractive personally and who can act, two qualifications that numerous so-called "soubrette stars" do not have. As the heroine of this play she is given ample opportunities. The piece abounds in "realism." A working blacksmith-shop, a saw mill scene that is full of excitement, and a race on a hand car are three of the most striking situations, and yesterday they were cheered to the echo. An express train introduced with a good deal of noise is also a feature. Miss Belmont gives some touches of pathos in her characterization which are well done. The play has an interesting story, ingeniously worked out, and is a much more interesting product than the average drama of this kind. It will run all week, with daily matinees. There were large audiences at both performances yesterday.

EMPIRE-MAY HOWARD COMPANY. The May Howard Company made its first appearance in this city at the Empire yesterday and succeeded in drawing two large audiences. The company is headed by the well-known German comedian Harry Morris. The sketch entitled "Græco-Roman Folly," acts as a curtain riser, and is replete with pleasing features. During this sketch Al Bellman does well his Roman tragedy burlesque, together with singing. The German specialties by Harry Morris kept the house in an uproar. A sporting touch to this opening sketch makes it popular with the spectators. Hanley and Jarvis do some knockabout business. The Washburne sisters are pleasing vocalists. Charlie Banks proved a great favorite. "The One Horse Circus" introduced the entire company, and made an effective finale, The costumes and scenery are handsome,

PREMIER WORKS RECEIVERSHIP. Officials and Creditors Meet to Talk Over the Affairs of the Company. Mr. C. W. DePauw was in the city yesterday in the interest of the Premier steel works, which is just now involved in some financial difficulties, and is in the hands of a receiver, Mr. John E. McGettigan. He was en last night at the Bates House, in o pany with others interested in the plant. In reply to questions by a Journal reporter. he said: "We have been very kindly treated in this trouble by everybody, and not a single person has indicated a desire or purpose to push us for their money. Even some gentlemen from abroad who are here have shown us the utmost cogsideration." Mr. DePauw said that he would probably be here several days until the inventory of stock is completed. Secretary Coen was asked about the number of men who would be idle while this work is going on. He said it is the purpose to do all the repairing and overhauling possible during the time. "We will throw a very heavy force of men into the works to-morrow morning to complete the inventory as soon as pos sible. We want that necessary part of the work over with as soon as it can be dene n order to set the mills to work again We hope in this way to finish up the task before the week closes. Mr. McGettigar is a man of much energy and ability and will expedite the matter all he can. There will probably be not more than 250 of the nearly 500 employes who will be idle during the time." CITY NEWS NOTES.
